By: Floyd Devine. While most divers will agree that completion of rescue training is one of the most challenging, humbling and rewarding experiences in recreational diving, it is the level of the challenge and the humbling of the student that make it unsuitable for the brand-new diver. As a scuba diver, you can use your diving skills in all branches of the military for recovery, inspection and special operations. Local and state law enforcement could also hire you as a certified scuba diver for underwater searches, rescue and salvage. To join the Rescue Diver Course someone should be Advanced Diver or have equivalent certificate of another organization. Training in CPR during the last 2 years is also required. If you do not have a current first aid certificate you will need to complete the PADI Emergency First Responder course. PUBLIC SAFETY DIVING Underwater diving, related to team operations and training, performed by a member, group or agency of a community or government- recognized public safety diving or water rescue team., Plunging To The Rescue; Emergency Personnel Earn Certification For Diving Operations.
