

Download Conversations With Great Writers

Conversations and Connections is a one-day writer's conference at George Mason University in Arlington, VA that brings together writers, editors, and publishers in a friendly, supportive environment. Students create a checklist outlining what effective writers do, revise his or her own writing, and engage in a written conversation to help peers with the revision process. We offer a wide range of help, from writing through to publication. Wherever possible, our help is completely free to members. We were founded by writers for writers – and our aim always, is to get you published. Jane Marcet (née Haldimand) (1 January 1769 – 28 June 1858) was a British salonnière and an innovative writer of popular introductory science books., Conversations With Great Writers.
