

Download Pseudo-kodinos And The Constantinopolitan Court Offices And Ceremonies

The Palaiologan emperors used the double-headed eagle as a symbol of the senior members of the imperial family. It was mostly used on clothes and other accoutrements, as codified in the mid-14th century by pseudo-Kodinos in his Book of Offices., Pseudo-kodinos And The Constantinopolitan Court Offices And Ceremonies.

Other Files :

Pseudo-kodinos And The Constantinopolitan Court Offices And Ceremonies,